

If you eat food that's good for you...	If you brush your teeth after every meal...	If the typewriter breaks down...	If the fabric begins to fray...
If the tennis game is canceled...	If you put the red shirt in with the white sheets...	If debts are paid promptly...	If a horse breaks its leg...
If the strange dog bites you...	If Mrs. Jones call for me...	If there is a storm from the east...	If there is a heavy snowfall during the winter...
If the book isn't on the shelf...	If you have a bug bite...	If you get the wrong number...	If there is an electrical storm tonight...
If there are no objections...	If there is a fire in a skyscraper...	If a person is injured...	If the only lights that go out are in the kitchen...
If I can't keep the hair out of my eyes...	If a dollar is worth 100 pennies...	If you pay in advance for your theater seats...

...sew it around the edge.	...it should help cut down on your dentistry bills.	...it's best not to scratch it.	...check the circuit breakers.
...you must report it to the rabies control center.	...its runoff may cause rivers to overflow.	...do not use the elevator.	...I'm going to tie it back.
...your bedclothes will turn pink.	...the rain will seep through our east window.	...it's best not to talk on the telephone.	...a person established good credit.
...ask the librarian if it is check out to someone else.	...tell her I will return soon.	...dial information.	...you will be healthier.
...it is best not to move him until medical help arrives.	...there is a fifteen percent reduction.	...it usually is destroyed.	...five dollars equal 500 pennies.
...you will have to write the report by hand at the table.	...we will continue.	...I will have to reschedule it.

Sequential Order

Directions:

1. Please cut the blue and green cards apart. Please keep them separate.
2. Green cards are the sentence beginnings, blue, the sentence ending.
3. Place the green cards in a grid so you can read all of them.
4. Place the blue cards in a pile, upside down.
5. Draw one blue card and select the green sentence starter that makes sense with the sentence ending on the card.